New CEO for Sunraysia Community Health Services

17 December 2015

The Chair of Sunraysia Community Health Services, Leonie Burrows has announced the appointment of Simone Heald as the new CEO for Sunraysia Community Health Services, following the resignation of long-term CEO, Craig Stanbridge after some 14 years in the position.

Simone brings to the position a wealth of acute health care, primary health and community health experience and qualifications from her various prior positions. She is currently the Director of Nursing at Mildura Base Hospital, and will commence duties in her new role at Sunraysia Community Health Services in February 2016.

“This is an exciting time in the development of Sunraysia Community Health Services, with new service delivery opportunities and the relocation of all services to the new building in 13th Street almost complete. The Board of Directors was impressed with the very high calibre of applicants for the CEO position, and welcomes Simone’s experience and input into the key CEO position”, Leonie Burrows said.
